Survey Camp H Successful Regatta

The second Annual Regatta under the guidance of the members of the Survey Camp at Gull Lake was staged at University Bay on Labor Day, when a large crowd responded to the hearty invitation extended by the boys, and attended this delightful event.

The morning light revealed a very un-cheerful aspect as gentle showers fell, but the old adage of "start before seven, quit before eleven" held true, and in a few hours the sun burst forth and continued on the job right through the day.

It was a great disappointment to the many who arrived late to have missed one of the most interesting items of the afternoon—the canoe tug-of-war, but from all reports, so closely were the parties matched, several minutes hard struggle were required before a decision was reached.

Owing to the camp being much smaller this year the contestants in the various events were not so numerous as last year, but what they lacked in numbers they made up in enthusiasm and a very entertaining program of punt, canoe and swimming races, etc., was carried out. The fancy divers were in good form and the high diving made the spectators hold their breaths when several headers were taken from the top of the diving tower. The entries in the tilting event were so closely matched that only one tumble into the chilly deep was recorded (much to the regret of the spectators of course) and the decision had to be given on points.

Supper was served at six and the boys responded nobly to those appetites which only a day spent at the lakeside can produce—and the multitude was fed. A baseball match, which resulted in a tie of 5-5, was called off by Umpire Twilight, to be continued at a future time.

To many the best part of the day was yet to come, when the large dormitory, with its huge fireplace and beautiful decorations, was lighted, and in a short time the piano sent forth an invitation to glide to its music, and the merry making continued far into the night.

So many persons have expressed their delight at the pleasant time they had had, we take this opportunity on behalf of those who attended to express their appreciation of the splendid hospitality tendered them by the boys, the staff and all who helped make the days such an enjoyable one.

EAT MORE HOME-GROWN

We Import Too Much Foreign Agricultural Products.

Canadians Use a Good Deal of Imported Fruit, Vegetables and Grain—Their Value Estimated at Nearly $109,000,000—The Mystery of Nitrogen—No Alcohol in Silage Milk.

Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Are Canadian farmers getting the full advantage of their home market? A study of the import figures for the fiscal year ending March 31st last reveals the amazing extent to which the food stuffs we most pride ourselves in producing are imported for consumption in Canada.

Take fruits for instance. Of apples we imported 155,201 barrels worth $775,819. They weren't all early apples either, for 30,028 barrels were brought in during March. During the year we imported: Berries, $114,892; cherries, $83,349; cranberries, $12,894; grapes, $661,443; peaches, $403,312; pears, $566,729; plums, $303,495; and strawberries, $785,150; a total of $3,907,083. Add to this $1,786,522 for dried apples, apricots, peaches, plums and prunes, and $492,828 for canned peaches, jellies and jams and imported fruits and fruit juices being $26,409,235, besides an item of $3,728,475 for nuts. Much of this was, of course, for sub-tropical fruits, but some of these might be substituted, to our financial and gustatory advantage, by home grown products. For instance, we might eat more roast apples and fewer oranges. While dealing with matters horticultural a shrub for $1,064,311 for plants, shrubs, trees and vines might be mentioned.

Coming to vegetables, our total bill for the fresh article was $3,575,070, of which cabbage accounted for $187,689, onions for $487,009, potatoes for $537,291 and tomatoes for $965,941, a total for these four commonly grown articles of $2,177,930. Of canned vegetables we imported $626,210 worth; of sauces, catsups and pickles, $518,660. Our total outlay for vegetables and vegetable products reached the considerable sum of nearly $5,000,000.

We have a great dairying country in Canada, yet we purchased abroad during the year $1,844,212 worth of milk and its products. This included $1,349,819 for 3,787,573 lbs. of butter, $327,022 for 916,517 lbs. of cheese, $46,387 for condensed milk, $92,710 for casein, and over $25,000 for sweet milk and cream. Our butter imports were supplemented by 1,165,440 lbs. of imported oleo-margarine.

Our foreign grain bill amounted to $1,275,682, though this included $7,695,280 for feed corn, and $2,020,596 for rice. Of which $3,960,000 lbs. came from Canada. Imported products cost us $385,897, and processed foods and bakery products over $500,000.

Our total imports under the heading "Agricultural and Vegetable Products, Mainly Food" came to the rather startling total of $103,761,192. We could hardly be expected, however, to produce our own tea, coffee and spices though we might considerably reduce our sugar bill. We now amount to approximately $10,000,000 a year, by growing more crops.

We also imported $20,855,233 worth of alcoholic beverages, which, as we all know, are mostly derived from the products of the farm. It may be, however, that some of our imported grains and fruits secured for us by this highly manufactured firm—R. D. Colquhoun, Dept. of Agricultural Economics, O. A. C. Guelph.

The Mystery of Nitrogen

Since animal life must depend upon plant life for its support, we must first learn how nitrogen gets from the air into the plant. Every farm boy has seen the grain turn yellow at times in the very early spring and especially that which was growing in the dead furrows of the fields. This occurs largely because there isn't enough nitrogen in the right form for the plants to get at this time of the year. As a single element existing alone, neither animals nor the green plants can use nitrogen, and yet the air is the source of the entire supply for all life.

If we go back into history of Roman agriculture, we will find that even the farmers of that time knew enough to grow legumes. Even though all of this was known, it was not until 1887 that the reason for it was discovered. Then it was that the little swellings always found on the roots of legumes were discovered to contain countless numbers of minute forms of life, now known as bacteria. Later it was learned that these little workers had a great deal to do with keeping the soil in fit condition for the growing of crops, for they, in their magic way of living, are capable of taking the nitrogen out of the air that is in the soil and making it become a part of the soil compounds. In this way we have the cheapest means of keeping up the nitrogen supply of the soil.—Hoard's Dairyman.

New Lamp Facilitates Night Work

1 and 2, views of wires as illuminated by incandescent lamp. The past interruptions to telegraph service caused by damage to outside wires could only, in the majority of cases, be rectified by daylight, when the damaged section could easily be located. There is no doubt this was a disadvantage which delayed the recovery of interrupted services. Where the trouble may have been anywhere along the line between points some 20 to 100 miles apart it was not possible to take care of the interruption especially at night. To overcome the disadvantage due to night interruptions to its wires, the Canadian Pacific Railway Telegraphs provided a special electric light and all the incandescent lamps were equipped with it, enabling them to successfully take care of interruptions and do their work at night as well as by day. The special light is provided with its power from the locomotive dynamo turbines with which all Canadian Pacific locomotives are equipped.

The special light in itself is of simple construction, the power is derived from a dynamo turbine from the locomotive which provides electricity for the illumination of the headlights and cab lights. A headlight globe is used and an especially designed reflector throws a beam sufficiently strong to allow working operations at a distance of 650 feet.

conducting wire attached to a socket in the cab of the locomotive is of sufficient strength to enable the operator to work any place within two car lengths of the locomotive. There is also a semi-permanent stand to which the lamp can be attached for the convenience of men working at night on bridges or, in fact anywhere that requires a steady flow of light. The lamp can also by interchange of globes be used where there is a domestic current, but not with such good effect.

As there is so much that can affect the Telegraph System, such as fire, aurora, lightning, snow, wind and rain, the advantage of being able to locate the source of trouble cannot be overestimated and time and time again, when the lines have been seriously damaged during the night, it has been found that the electric hand lamp, which is now used throughout the System, has been of great benefit. During the past winter when the service experienced a considerable number of interruptions the lamp was often used during snow and sleet storms and not in one instance is it known of its having failed to meet all services put upon it. There is no doubt that the perfection of this lamp has been a decided progressive

About the House

SEVENTY.

The laughing welcome on Julia's lips died unspoken at sight of Maisie's face. For after a bewildered glance at her Maisie stared past her down the street, and her eyes were sharp with anxiety.

"What is it, Maisie? Has Benjie run away? Can't I hunt for him?" "Oh, Benjie's all right," Maisie replied. "I didn't mean to be rude, Julie. Do come in. You see, I've been expecting Aunt Rebecca for the last two hours. She's been gone since ten o'clock, and I'm so worried!"

"Good for Aunt Rebecca!" Julia retorted. "I hope she's having a great old time. She must need it if you watch over her like that."

"But, Julia, she's seventy!" Maisie's voice was full of consternation.

"What's seventy if you don't feel it? Aunt Rebe has all her faculties and more interest in life than half the people you know. Do let her alone, Maisie!"

"But she may get run over! You don't seem to realize—"

"As far as automobiles are concerned, seventy isn't half so dangerous an age as seven. I've known at least two old ladies who counted hospital experiences the great adventures of their lives! Don't rob your aunt of any fun that's coming to her!"

"Julia Durant, you're positively flippant!"

"Not inside, Maisie; truly, I'm not. I'm just thinking how I'd loathe being watched and worried over!"

"There she comes at last!" cried Maisie, running to the door.

Aunt Rebecca came in; her hair was disordered and her hat awry, but her eyes were bright, and there was a happy color in her face. And then at Maisie's greeting all the happiness fell from her like a garment.

"Aunt Rebe, where have you been? I've been nearly wild!"

"It was such a nice day," Aunt Rebecca pleaded. "I thought I'd just run out to 'Liza Saunders. I was so glad I did, for she's had such a hard winter—"

But Maisie was not at all interested in 'Liza Saunders. "You go right upstairs and lie down till dinner," she ordered. "Be sure to cover yourself up."

"But I ain't tired a mite," Aunt Rebecca protested. "I feel freshened up. The light had faded from her eyes."

"Maisie," Julia said abruptly, "I'm going to take Aunt Rebe home for the night. We'll be back sometime! You needn't worry; if we die, we'll die together!"

"But you haven't room," Maisie protested.

"I'll make room!"

Ten minutes later Julia and Aunt Rebecca were headed for the subway.

"Aunt Rebe," the girl said to her solemnly, "can you sleep on a couch? And go to a show to-morrow? And—"

The sudden flooding joy in the old lady's face brought tears to Julia's eyes. "I'll never tell her she's old," she vowed to herself. "Never, never! Not if she lives to be a hundred!"

PLANNING THE LAYETTE.

My three young sons have necessitated my obtaining considerable miscellaneous information concerning a layette.

I have always preferred a simple, practical outfit, as it is less wearing on the mother to prepare it, and is so quickly outgrown.

The money saved this way can be much more advantageously used for a skillful doctor and nurse, a two weeks' complete rest for the mother, and the advice of a food specialist for the baby's feeding if the mother is unable to successfully feed her baby. The baby's life and future health are too important to neglect giving him the best possible start.

Three of each of the following articles are necessary, four would be safer in case daily washing were delayed.

Flannel bands; skirts; pinning blankets; flannel skirts, "Gertrude" style; wrappers or nightgowns buttoning in back; stockings; booties; warm jackets or sweaters; three dozen dapers, twenty-seven inches square, will be required; so will nainsook skirts and dresses; a cap, cloak; blankets; pads, and a small hot-water bottle.

Some points in baby's care I have been most watchful of:

No pacifiers or soothing syrups. Find the cause of its discomfort; warm water enemas offer wonderful relief for gas pain.

See that baby has at least one good bowel movement each day. The same rule for nursing mothers.

Regular feeding hours for baby. No excitement and unnecessary handling.

In changing and dressing baby I put him on a softly padded card table, slipping his skirts and dress up over his feet.

As scrupulous cleanliness as possible in the personal care of the baby; handling utensils for his feeding, and particularly the hands of whoever cares for him.—Mrs. G. C.

HINGED VERANDAH FURNITURE.

Verandah days are invariably the busiest days on the farm. And looking after verandah furniture is just one more task. That is why hinged furnishings, especially for the side or back verandah, prove so convenient. They also save space.

A table hinged to the wall makes a handy place to do sitting-down kitchen tasks or to hold the sewing materials in the afternoon. It is well to have it large enough to hold Sunday-night lunches.

Seats at either end of the verandah that let down are generally handier than stationary benches, as they are out of the way when not needed and shed rain and snow better than benches. Another advantage of hinged furnishings is that they are always ready for use—no storing away in the fall until spring comes.

CAN GREENS FOR WINTER USE.

To can kale or greens for winter use, one should be rather careful with every detail as a very poisonous bacteria forms sometimes. To prepare the greens for canning, wash them carefully in cold water and blanch 4 to 5 minutes in boiling water. This allows them to shrink so that they may be packed very easily in the jars. The jars should be well filled, but not too firmly packed as they may not be thoroughly sterilized in the centre of the can if the mass is too firm. To each quart jar add one teaspoon salt and what other seasoning desired, chipped beef or other meat; then adjust rubbers in position and take one turn back. Process them three hours in hot water bath, or 60 minutes under 10 lbs. of steam pressure.

"Jane is a statuesque beauty." "Yes—even her head is stone."

A tennis court surfaced with rubber and colored green is a new idea from London. It appears to have everything to recommend it except the cost.

Cure Yourself.

The human body is subject to many ills, and there are times, of course, when expert medical advice should be sought. But the following quick cures are not of the "quack" variety, and would be approved by doctors.

For indigestion eat less, and slowly. Masticate and re-masticate each mouthful of food.

For stoutness, drink less; eat much less; and walk six miles per day.

For thinness, eat fattening (farinaceous) foods; go to bed early and get up late; indulge, if possible, in an afternoon nap; and take a spoonful of olive oil after each meal.

For "nerves" eat prunes; don't smoke; reduce your consumption of tea; go for a quiet half-mile walk before breakfast and use your will-power.

For a weak chest or tendency to colds, breathe deeply always.

For threatened baldness wear a light hat; brush your hair frequently, and rub in a little olive oil nightly.

For neuralgia, eat (because of its strong content of iron) spinach on every possible occasion.

For a flushed or pimply face, avoid all pastry; eat little meat, but much fruit and green vegetables; and drink no alcohol.

Finally, to keep good general health, use cold water—three large glasses daily internally, and a gallon or so externally.

That First Job.

How will Miss High School go about selecting a job this fall? Blindly or carelessly or both, far too often for her own good, says Miss Emma Phinney, director of the employment work of the Young Women's Christian Association.

"If more care was given to fitting the beginner into the right job at 16 or 20, there would be fewer breakdowns at 35 among business women," says Miss Phinney. "A girl more than a man must have congenial work or an atmosphere in which she is happy or the strain tells upon her health. When a beginner doesn't know what she wants for her first job she needs some one to take time to unearth her talents or best abilities. For this the non-commercial agency has a big responsibility."

Girls seeking their first job follow the help wanted ads utterly oblivious of whether the job is to fit them or they are to fit the job. Their mother's cousin works at Blank's and they go there.

"If the first job was regarded in the light of a long stone it wouldn't matter so much," Miss Phinney continued, "but for girls who lack initiative the first job more or less determines their future."

Good Scheme.

An Englishman was staying at a swaggar hotel in Berlin.

He had secured comfortable rooms, but the landlord informed him one day that he must give them up in favor of a fresh arrival, the Elector—that is to say, the Governor—of some petty German State with an unpronounceable name.

"Nonsense!" said the Englishman. "You do not know who I am. Bring the visitors' book, and I will add my title."

The book was brought, and in a bold hand he wrote after his name, "Elect- or of Middlesex."

He was allowed to keep his rooms.

The best Chinese razors are made of old horseshoes.

Undertakers are unknown in Japan. When a person dies there, the body is encoffined and buried by a member of the family.

HEALTH EDUCATION

BY DR. J. J. MIDDLETON

Provincial Board of Health, Ontario

Dr. Middleton will be glad to answer questions on Public Health matters through this column. Address him at Spadina House, Spadina Crescent, Toronto.

Does poverty affect the health of children and contribute to the high death rate among infants? All indications point to the fact that it does.

There are many causes of infant mortality. Lack of knowledge on the part of the parent is supposed to be responsible for many of these deaths, but this is not the only cause. What about poverty? What about low wages that compel a family to eke out an existence just above what is required to keep body and soul together?

There are many such pitiable plights of families, and the sooner such conditions are put right, the sooner will the standard of citizenship be raised. The nation that in war time permits its soldiers to make war on women and children is rightly considered as beyond the pale of citizenship. What may be said of the nation that in peace time allows its infants to be murdered? Is Canada such a nation? It is to be hoped not, and yet our infant mortality rate is far too high. What is the relationship between this infant mortality rate and the family income? Vancouver, B.C., has an infant mortality rate of fifty-five (one of the lowest in the Dominion of Canada) and the average salary of Vancouver is more than $1,250.

In Montreal where the infant mortality rate is above 155, the average earning capacity of parents is less than $450 per year.

Living conditions in Canada and the United States are somewhat similar, and what we know of conditions there may be an index of what is prevalent here.

"Six careful and painstaking surveys made by the Government seem to fasten the indictment of baby murderers upon us as a nation," says one writer. "We are murdering babies by permitting their parents to be paid so little in wages that the babies die without a chance to live."

The latest revelation of that condition comes from Gary, Indiana, old Judge Gary's "Model Village," built by the steel trust. The children's bureau of the department of labor has just completed a year's study of infant mortality there which shows: An increase of infant mortality corresponding to the fall of the earnings of the chief bread winners. When the earnings amounted to at least $1,850 a year the infant death rate was 89.4. When the earnings ranged between $1,050 and $1,850 the death rate was 127.1. When the earnings fell below $1,050 the death rate rose to 137.8.

Said the bureau's report: The heavier toll was taken by the gastric and intestinal diseases due to the inability of the mothers to feed their babies at the breast, inability to purchase enough wholesome milk, bad housing and lack of sanitation.

It should be the wish of every citizen and the aim of every statesman to maintain and increase the standards of living which exist in our country. There is some faint hope that the industrial outlook on this continent may lead us to believe that poverty as a cause of infant mortality may soon be considerably reduced.

There's only one safe way of climbing in business, and that is to stay on the level.

Evidence Too Strong.

"So they convicted your friend of selling bad butter? Was there no way for him to get out of it?"

"No; the evidence was too strong."

Too Bad.

The school inspector was a dear old man, and in a kindly, paternal sort of manner he gathered the class round him.

"Now, suppose, Willie Brown," he said to one of the boys, "that you and I are playing marbles, and that you have ten marbles and that I have six."

In breathless, open-eyed attention the class crowded nearer as the inspector proceeded.

"At the end of the game you have won half my marbles, and, of course, I want to play again and win them back."

Nearer still came the interested pupils.

"At the end of the second game I win half of those you had. Tell me—excitement waxed intense—"how many have you left?"

This was too much for Willie, and, with a look of inexpressible disgust, he exclaimed:

"Crickety, blowed if it ain't a sum!"

A VIEW FROM AUSTRALIA

Uncle Sam—"Don't fuss, sis—the body will drift to the shore."

GOVERNOR PINCHOT SUBMITS PLANS TO AVERT ANTHRACITE COAL STRIKE

A despatch from Harrisburg, Pa., says:—Governor Pinchot has submitted to representatives of the anthracite miners and operators, in joint conference, a proposed basis of settlement, providing for a 10 per cent. increase in pay, recognition of the eight-hour day for all employees, and full recognition of the union by the operators, without the check-off, but with the right to have a union representative present when the men are paid.

The three main points of the scheme of settlement were set forth as follows:

(1) Recognition of the eight-hour day for all employees. Longer hours are necessary at certain times, or in certain occupations, the overtime be paid for at the eight-hour rate.

(2) A uniform increase of 10 per cent. to all employees, this increase to take effect September 1.

(3) Full recognition of the union by the operators, without the check-off, but with the right to have a union representative present when the men are paid.

A fourth point proposed complete recognition of the principle of collective bargaining.

The Governor also suggested that, as a method of settling differences in case of disagreement between miners and operators, each side select a man agreeable to both to attend and take part in discussions, but without a vote, and not as an umpire or referee. If then unable to agree, he proposed the differences be referred to the Conciliation Board, "which will be provided with whatever equipment is necessary for the rendering of prompt decisions."

In opening his address the Governor said:

"My justification for proposing a basis upon which I believe this strike can be prevented, with justice to all parties, is threefold.

"First, that this controversy has continued until a chance of agreement by direct negotiations by the miners and operators has been lost.

"Second, that the interest of the miners, the operators and the public all require that this controversy shall be settled without a strike.

"Third, that the public is entitled to a voice in the discussion, and the rights of the people generally deserve consideration, at least, as much as those of the miners and operators."

He declared he based his proposals upon information assembled from operators, miners and Government experts, with the belief that they afford a basis for settlement reasonable and just.

He then outlined his plan for a settlement, adding, that he did not regard the question of the open or closed shop as at issue in the controversy.

After expressing the opinion that an agreement on the terms suggested should cover a term of one year, Governor Pinchot discussed the wage question in detail.

"The whole body of wage rates in the anthracite field," he said, "is antiquated, haphazard and honey-combed with inequality. It needs revision. I suggest that the Anthracite Conciliation Board be authorized by the Joint Wage Scale Committee to undertake and complete within a year a thorough revision."

NO CHANGE IN RURAL ELEVATOR TARIFFS

Manitoba Farmers Rush the Wheat to Market Through Ordinary Channels.

A despatch from Winnipeg says:—There will be no change in rural elevator tariffs on the prairies. That was definitely disposed of at the adjourned annual meeting of the Grain Board, when it refused the request of owners of country elevators for an amendment to the regulations which would permit them to make an extra charge of one-half cent per bushel of one-half cent per bushel. The present regulation provides a tariff of 1½ cents a bushel for storing grade and dockage grain, and there is a clause that "grain specially cleaned will be subject to a charge of one-half cent per bushel for each cleaning." The Grain Act, however, provides a maximum charge of 1½ cents for storing grain whether or not the elevator has a cleaner, and the operators asked that the word "specially" be removed from the regulations. The board decided that the regulations should stand, but suggested that the elevator companies make representations for an amendment to the Act.

There has been much discussion of reports that increases in the present tariff would be demanded by elevator interests. Hon. Geo. Langley has been mentioned as one likely speaker before the meeting in the interest of increased charges. Elevator men assert that the tariff does not allow grain to be handled at a profit, that if the elevators had no other sources of revenue they could not be operated. They make nothing, some elevator managers of the grain exchange assert, on merely handling grain at the tariff for farmers. It is from grain bought that their revenue, which they assert is meagre, comes.

Meantime, larger quantities of grain are being shipped under the ordinary system from Southern Alberta, and at that it is now going to market any pool that is formed in Manitoba this season will have little, if any, grain from this province to handle.

Yamamoto Appointed Premier of Japan

A despatch from Tokio says:—Count Gombei Yamamoto has been appointed Premier of Japan, to succeed the late Baron Kato. The appointment followed a summons to court by Prince Regent Hirohito, who acted upon the advice of the Genro, or elder statesman. The new Premier is progressing toward the formation of a Cabinet which is expected to be completed soon.

PEACE OF EUROPE DISTURBED BY ITALY'S ULTIMATUM TO GREEK GOVERNMENT

A despatch from Rome says:—The Greek Government has replied to the Italian ultimatum embodying demands for reparations for the massacre of the members of the Italian boundary mission at the Albanian frontier. Greece accepts four of Italy's demands with modifications, and rejects three of them.

Greece is willing to present official apologies at the Italian Legation at Athens for the murder of the Italian members of the Boundary Commission, the highest Greek military authorities to present this apology.

Greece will accord the victims the most solemn memorial services in the Catholic Cathedral at Athens. The bodies will be accorded full military honors by the Greek fleet at the Piræus, which will meet the Italian naval division that is to bring the bodies back to Italy.

The Athens Government will institute a most severe investigation of the murders under the supervision of the Italian military attaché, for whose safety the Italian Government holds Greece responsible.

Capital punishment is promised for those guilty of the killings. But the clause of the Italian note demanding 50,000,000 (about $2,150,000) indemnity fills the Greeks with perplexity.

The Italian note had demanded that the indemnity be paid in five days.

It is said in Athens that the assassinations were due to Greeks from Epirus, enraged because the Council of Ambassadors had refused to include twenty-two Epirote villages in Greek territory.

A French member of the mission, who proceeded to the scene of the murders, reports that while the Italians were motorizing from Janina to Santi Quaranta through a thickly wooded country they were ambushed. He found Major Corti dead in the automobile. General Tellini, president of the mission, had time to run twenty yards. His body lay beside the road. The other three were killed near the car.

No money was taken, so the assumption is that the crime was political. Furthermore, the Greek press had lately protested violently against the refusal to include the twenty-three villages in Greece. General Tellini was held responsible and accused of favoring Albanians over Greeks.

The Italian Government has warned the press against exaggerating the Greek crisis and also against alleged notices of military movements.

The Albanian Legation denies the Greek insinuations that Albanian bands assassinated the Italian mission. The Legation points out the scene of the crime was over ten miles from the Albanian border.

Greeks, it is said, have long been arming bands in this district and encouraging resistance to the frontier decisions. A Greek element hostile to the Italian mission is reported to have received funds and arms from Athens.

QUEEN OF ROUMANIA WINS POINCARÉ AID

Persuades French Premier to Recognize New Regime in Greece.

A despatch from Paris says:—While he still refuses to be swayed from his stand in the Ruhr by British statesmen, Premier Poincaré could not resist the determined appeals of a woman in the interest of her children.

While Prime Minister Baldwin and Lord Curzon continue their unavailing efforts to induce a change in French policy on the representations, Queen Marie of Roumania, the most diplomatic sovereign in Europe, has succeeded in a few minutes' conversation in inducing M. Poincaré to depart from his policy of neutrality in regard to Greece, where her daughter now reigns next to her husband, George II.

Careful manoeuvring by this wise woman diplomatist has at last borne fruit in the announcement that France is about to recognize the sovereigns now watching over the destinies of Greece.

The persuasive powers of this woman, of whom it is said that she has a stronger will than any king, are indeed extraordinary. She has played no small part in the restoration of equilibrium in central Europe and the Balkans, and from her campaign to get Roumania into the war on the side of the Allies, though her husband was a member of the Hohenzollern family, she crowned all previous achievements by marrying off her two daughters to Greek and Serbian monarchs. She is now planning a marriage between her youngest daughter and the King of Bulgaria.

To-day she is considered one of the pillars of the Little Entente—that bloc of nations resolved to keep and enforce peace in the Balkans and central Europe.

Queen Marie also is famous as an author and playwright, her best known play being "The White Lily," which is now being produced at the Paris Opera, interpreted by Loie Fuller. The Roumanian Queen is a member of several European academies, notably the French Academy of Political and Moral Science, where her contributions are eagerly received and usually approved.

A cablegram from the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome summarizing the world's wheat conditions places Canada in the foremost position as a source of supply for the world's wheat markets. The prospective shipments from principal wheat exporting countries are placed as follows: Canada, 290 millions bushels; United States, 180 millions; Argentina, 120 millions; Australia, 40 millions; India, 30 millions; Russia, 20 millions; Balkans, 10 millions.

BOTH PARTIES IN ANTHRACITE CONTROVERSY REJECT SETTLEMENT PROPOSAL

A despatch from Harrisburg, Pa., says:—When the 158,000 men engaged in the anthracite industry laid down their tools for the day at three o'clock Friday afternoon, the strike of 1923 was on.

It was on because neither side to the controversy would accept Governor Pinchot's proposals for a settlement of the matters in dispute when they met him at noon and, according to union leaders, there was not sufficient time even if there was the inclination to cancel or set aside the strike orders already issued.

Because he knows the situation, Governor Pinchot decided that the meeting must be in executive session. At this session—and it is not certain that he will not meet with each group separately after the general meeting—he is expected to use the proposal, and the objections which both sides will present to it as a basis on which to trade for something that will put the men back to work at the earliest possible moment.

The objections of the miners to the Governor's proposal are: That the increase in wages proposed while a step in the right direction, is insufficient and does not meet the needs of the men; that arbitration in any form is objectionable; that the form proposed by the Government would place everything in the hands of one man, Dr. Charles P. Neill; that full recognition which the Governor says they should have is but a phrase without the check-off and the closed shop.

The objections of the operators to the proposal are that it makes no provision for keeping the mines running after the close of Friday's work; that it is vague in that it does not specify what the phrase "full recognition" means; that the proposal to relieve the public of the burden of the increased costs the increases in wages must mean in the price of coal by forcing railroads and distributors to lower their prices is impossible of execution; that it would require months, if not years, of hearings by the Interstate Commerce Commission to force a revision of rates; that the Governor's estimate of 60 cents as the cost of the changes he proposes is too low and that generally the scheme is impracticable.

FIRE HOSE AT WAWA CONDEMNED BY JURY.

Verdict Reached in Enquiry Into Cause of Death of Summer Hotel Victim.

A despatch from Huntsville says:—The following verdict was reached by the jurors empanelled to inquire into the death of Miss Annie Leigh, one of the victims of the disastrous fire at Wawa:

"That Annie Leigh came to her death accidentally at the Wawa Hotel, Muskoka, on August 19, while endeavoring to escape from the burning building."

The jury deprecated the absence of systematic inspection of public buildings for the purpose of testing fire-fighting appliances, and also made a number of recommendations.

The jury found that "there being at present no proper system of Government supervision, inspection be enforced to provide for adequate fire escapes, efficient fire-fighting equipment, the organization of a watchman service, and for a general alarm system, either by means of a power-house whistle or for electric gongs within the buildings, or for both. It further recommended that all elevator or hoist shafts in such buildings be of fire-proof construction, and that in the case of the building of new hotels or lodging-houses construction of a fire-retarding nature be used within reason, and that where possible segregated units be erected, instead of one large building."

Victoria, B.C.—The loganberry wine industry has been initiated in the Victoria district and the Growers' Wine Co., Ltd., is already producing its product at Saanich. A great future is confidently expected for the industry with the extension of the province's acreage under loganberries.

Dorset

On Thursday evening the boys and girls who attended the Toronto Exhibition under the guardianship of Inspector and Mrs. Pentland, returned all safe and sound and brimful of detailed accounts of what they had seen and what they had done during the trip.

On Monday the children went to Huntsville where they met Mr. and Mrs. Pentland and were escorted to the Methodist and Presbyterian churches.

That evening Mr. Pentland delighted the children and a fair audience with a very interesting description of his travels through Italy and Greece and quoted "The Forester". Each moment of the lecture was enjoyed and Mr. Pentland's easy manner of public address and his splendid powers of description will, we trust, be more frequently available to the people of this community.

The children spent Tuesday at the exhibition grounds and on Wednesday were taken by motor around the city. They visited the Parliament Buildings where they were addressed by Premier Ferguson. They were dined at noon by Lady Eaton at the big Eaton store.

They visited the zoo and climbed the tower of St. Paul's and already some of them are wondering if they may go next time. The parents extend a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Pentland for their kindly care of the children, which must have been some task.

The Misses Christina and Katherine McKay are spending a holiday under the parental roof.

Miss Muriel Lockman, who has been teaching in New Ontario, is visiting her parents here.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Wilford A. Johnston, who departed this life Sept. 9th, 1914.

Dear Wilford, you have left us lonely. Nine long years have passed away. You are gone but not forgotten. Our thoughts are with us day by day.

You had no one your last farewell. You waved your hand to none. Your spirit fled before we knew. That you had journeyed Home.

Friends may think we have forgotten. And our aching hearts are healed. Little do they know the sorrow. That's within our hearts concealed. THOS. JOHNSTON and Family.

OBITUARY

JOHN HULBIG

On Sunday, August 26th, death removed one more pioneer of Haliburton County in the person of John Hulbig, of Lutterworth Township, who was in his 90th year. The deceased had been an invalid for about ten years and in 1915 he was afflicted by total blindness.

Mr. Hulbig was born in Germany, and about 75 years ago emigrated to Canada and settled in Montreal, where he married Louisa Steinkraus. Of this union, one son, John Hulbig, of Lutterworth, is the only surviving member.

About 50 years ago they moved to their present farm in Lutterworth, where Mrs. Hulbig passed away in 1881. In 1883 he married Mrs. Agnes Grogan, who still survives him, as also one son, Stuart, at home, and one daughter, Mrs. Fred Long, of Snowdon.

Shortly after coming to Minden he joined the Orange Order, and at the time of his death was the oldest member of this lodge, in which he at one time took an active part. For many years he was Treasurer of Lutterworth Township and continued to act in that capacity until disability required him to give it up.

The funeral was held on Tuesday, under the auspices of the Orange Order, at Minden Cemetery, Rev. G. E. Fierheller officiating.

MRS. JAMES THOMPSON

The sad news came to Bobcaygeon on Thursday morning last that Mrs. James Thompson, who was a previous proprietor of the Rockland House, had passed away suddenly on the previous evening from heart trouble at her Toronto home. The body arrived here on the noon train on Friday and was taken to Knox Church where the funeral service was held at 2:30 p.m., after which a large number of friends and relatives followed the remains to the V-rulam cemetery, where it was interred. Her two children, Mrs. Hiron and Mrs. Davis, of Toronto, have the heartfelt sympathy of the people of the village and district in the sad loss of their mother.—Post.

Mrs. Thompson was well-known in this vicinity having been a resident of Minden for several years.

Canadian Mothers Have Healthy Children

WHY? READ THIS!

London, Ont.—"Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was so beneficial to me that I feel it my duty to send this statement for publication, so that it may be of help to other young mothers. During my last expectant period I felt just miserable, nauseated so that I could not retain my food, my back ached and I just seemed to ache and pain all over. Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription put me in perfect physical condition. I was able to eat my meals without that awful sick feeling and I kept well and strong right up to the last. My baby seemed to be benefited, too—was as strong and healthy as a baby could be. I think so much of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription as an aid to nature in motherhood that I would not go thru expectancy without its help."—Mrs. Ernest Morris, 3 Webb St.
